

A Future Without Jobs? Automation and Capitalism in Crisis

Presentation by David A. Romero

$750 for 2 hr presentation (can be shortened to an hour).

AGES: 16+

Description:

In this presentation, Romero speaks to a changing economy and a crisis in capitalism; one motivated by a global “race to the bottom” and increased automation of labor.

Romero provides a brief summary of agrarian and industrial-based economies, bringing us into the current moment; where advanced robotics and computer programs drive workers out of both “blue collar” and “white collar” jobs.

Are we looking at a future without jobs? What are the potential advantages and pitfalls of restructuring society around increased automation?

Presentation includes multimedia and readings of poetry.

Purpose:

This presentation seeks to help students understand the impact that automation has had on society and the continuing impact it will have on Late Capitalism and Post-Capitalism.

A Future Without Jobs? Automation and Capitalism in Crisis has been presented at:

- Cal State Fullerton
- Cal Poly Pomona (partial)
- University of Central Florida (partial)

Flyers:

David A. Romero has not yet developed a flyer template for this presentation. If you decide to book A Future Without Jobs? Automation and Capitalism in Crisis, Romero can design a flyer for the event for no extra fee.

More:

Workshop requires projector, projection screen, laptop connection, sound system and microphone (preferably cordless).

$750 (plus travel and lodging)

Travel and lodging can be handled in two ways: 1) the university makes the arrangements on Romero's behalf (preferred) or, 2) Romero makes the arrangements and is reimbursed with the total check.

For booking, contact: davidaromero@gmail.com